Program Notes

Go Galop

Fillmore, arr. Contorno

Henry Fillmore (1881-1956) was the most flamboyant bandsman of his time, an era that stretched across fifty years. During those years he wrote 225 pieces and 775 arrangements of works by others, more band music than any other composer/bandmaster in history. While best known for march music; circus “screamers” and trombone rags, he also wrote overtures, waltzes, foxtrots, hymns and novelty numbers.

Fillmore wrote his Go Galop in 1916 under the name of Will Huff, one of seven pseudonyms that he used during his career. As the story goes, the name Will Huff came from an argument Fillmore had with his father over the young man’s direction as a composer. His father wanted him to concentrate on church music. Henry apparently said, “I will huff and puff and write my own music!” Fillmore’s first published march (1903) was written under the name Will Huff.

By strange coincidence, Will Huff turned out to be the name of a real composer lived in Ohio, and whose works were later published by the Fillmore Company.

Rise of the Firebird

Steven Reineke

The Phoenix, or Firebird, is a mythological creature able to consume itself by fire, bursting forth in flames only to rise again from the ashes stronger and more powerful than before. This fabled bird is a symbol of hope, triumph and immortality. Webster’s Dictionary defines a Phoenix as a marvelous person or thing. This piece of music is dedicated to Herbert Spencer.

A few additional thoughts:

- Most universities recommend 2 years of foreign language
- Many instrumental students opt to take Health online
- Students have the opportunity to take health or PE over the summer. This allows more elective choices during the school year.
- Electives may include performing arts, visual arts, business, foreign language, industrial/technical or PE.
- In some cases, students can take a zero hour or 7th hour or an E2020 class (online course) that will allow more electives in their schedule.
